Gemini 7 Ends Greatest Space Venture

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — Blackened by the fire of re-entry, the Gemini 7 space ship rode a parachute to a landing in the Atlantic Ocean today, bringing astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell home safely from man's greatest adventure in space.

Weary and heavily bearded after 14 long days of the weightless ordeal, they guided their tiny craft to a splashdown at 9:05 a.m. (EST), 11 to 17 miles from the prime recovery vessel, the aircraft carrier Wasp.

The meteoric dive back to earth ended the most exciting and the most significant space voyage ever flown by man.

Borman and Lovell had traveled far longer than any other spacemen—330 hours, 35 minutes; flown the most miles—5,129,400, and had given the United States a long lead over Russia in many other phases of the race between the nations to be first on the moon.

And, with a skillful assist from the Gemini 6 pilots, Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford, they had achieved the first true rendezvous of orbiting space ships—an historic feat recorded graphically on color film.

The exhausted spacemen asked for a helicopter pickup, electing not to wait for the arrival of the Wasp. They climbed through the hatches into life rafts and gave the pilots of the rescue planes overhead thumbs-up signals telling them everything was okay.

A horsecollar was lowered from a helicopter and each astronaut was hauled up and flown to the Wasp, where excited sailors lined the rails waiting for a glimpse of them. They were deposited on the deck of the carrier at 9:37 a.m. 32 minutes after splashdown.

A bit wobbly, but sporting huge grins, Borman and Lovell walked to the strains of "Anchors Aweigh" and—to the wild cheers of the Wasp's men—to the sick bay for their first checkup.

After five hours of light sleep, Borman and Lovell awoke shortly after midnight and stowed away the loose gear and the last of the debris collected during the long days of life in the tiny space ship.

"Are you ready to come home?" Mission Control asked. "Ready!" cried Borman.

"Ready!" cried Lovell.

Right on the button, at 8:28 a.m. (EST), Borman fired a blast from his retrorockets. The jolt of the four jet rockets slowed the 17,500-mile-an-hour speed of the space ship by about 300 miles.

Falling into the grip of the earth's gravity, it began the meteoric, 10,000-mile dive to earth across the Pacific, Mexico, Southern Texas, the Gulf of Mexico and Florida.

Sixty miles high over Texas, during the hottest part of the fiery re-entry, the spaceship was enveloped by an electrified curtain and entered a four-minute blackout period.

When they came through it, Borman reported he was flying a true course toward the recovery task force of five ships and 21 aircraft waiting to pluck them from the ocean 565 miles southwest of Bermuda in the Atlantic.

A Navy plane sighted the spacecraft bobbing under its giant parachute, tracked it down to the water, and got first word from the astronauts that they were all right. The near perfect flight had been climaxed with a landing at precisely the planned moment.

It was not determined immediately whether Borman and Lovell, who had made a bet with Schirra and Stafford that their landing would be closer to the mark, won the bet. The Gemini 6 pilots missed by 13.4 miles.

Edward H. White II, the Gemini 4 pilot who walked in space, expressed his confidence in Borman and Lovell early in the day.

"I sent a message out to the skipper of the carrier," he told them, "asking him to move off just a bit to the left of the spot, so you wouldn't put him in jeopardy."

In the final hour before retro-rocket fire, the astronauts were serenaded from earth with the smooth rhythm of the songs, "Going Back to Houston" and "I'll Be Home for Christmas."

"Roger," they said, and they came home from the skies — tired, stiff and dirty, but bearing a great bundle of presents for the people of the United States.

The gifts of the bearded men were every space flight record in the books—and the assurance the Apollo spacemen to follow them may go on to the moon without fear of the mental and physical stresses of life in space.

They endured the weird environment long enough to have made two voyages to the moon — spending a full day on the lunar surface each trip — and they came through with no known ill effects.

"Certainly," said flight director Christopher C. Kraft, "It appears now that it can be done."

The main goal of Gemini 7 was to gather medical data on how well man withstands long exposure to the space environment. If Borman and Lovell miss the aircraft carrier Wasp by a wide margin and have to be transported to the carrier by helicopter, the exertion might upset some of the early data, which Dr. Charles A. Berry, Gemini flight surgeon, considers important.

U.S. Insists Peace Feeler Be Clarified

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has asked Communist North Viet Nam to clarify conditions in a peace feeler by President Ho Chi Minh for negotiations to end the Vietnamese war.

"I am prepared to go anywhere; to meet anyone," Ho was quoted as saying.

Both the White House and Secretary of State Dean Rusk made clear, however, that U.S. leaders are deeply skeptical of the Hanoi offer. At the same time, officials stressed they would make every effort to reach an acceptable arrangement for negotiations if one is possible.

"We await Hanoi's reply," the State Department said Friday night.

"We declare once more our desire to discuss an honorable peace in Viet Nam," said President Johnson as he lit the national Christmas tree. "We know that nothing is to be gained by further delay in talking."

The peace bid was made Nov. 11 in a meeting between Ho and two Italians and passed on to the State Department by Italy's Foreign Minister Amintore Fanfani, this year's president of the U.N. General Assembly. The State Department made public the details Friday after published stories indicated the Hanoi offer had already been rejected.

Diplomats here and at the United Nations expressed concern that disclosure might torpedo the peace effort and bring strong Communist Chinese pressure on Hanoi.

Before entering talks, Hanoi said, there should be a ceasefire throughout Viet Nam and agreement that negotiations be based on the 1954 Geneva agreement on Viet Nam as defined by the four-point program laid down last March by the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong.

"The government in Hanoi is prepared to initiate negotiations without first requiring actual withdrawal of the American troops," Fanfani reported. The North Vietnamese have consistently called for U.S. withdrawal from Viet Nam, but the four points are vague on when this should occur.

Replying to Fanfani's letter, which was dated Nov. 20, Rusk said in a Dec. 4 letter that the United States is "far from persuaded" that statements by Ho and Premier Pham Van Dong "indicate a real willingness for unconditional negotiations." The White House said Friday night that it has had no indication that North Viet Nam "is ready to conduct unconditional discussions."

State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey said that the United States remains ready for negotiations without conditions with North Viet Nam and is awaiting a reply from Hanoi "to determine whether it wants to move this great question from the battlefield to the conference table."

In New York, Fanfani said Friday night that he had forwarded Rusk's reply to Ho on Dec. 8. "No answer has reached me as of today," the Italian diplomat added.

Close Presidential Race Seen

DeGaulle Or Mitterrand? France To Decide Sunday

PARIS (AP) — France elects a president Sunday, choosing between what incumbent Charles de Gaulle calls the "stability" of his regime and opponent Francois Mitterrand's promise of a "return to democratic government."

Many observers believe the election will be close. But it is not certain to what extent Mitterrand, a lawyer with Socialist and Communist support, has been able to capitalize on discontent with the Gaullist regime.

However, the mere fact that the election is a run-off demonstrates that disaffection exists in a significant quantity. In the first round of voting Dec. 5, when six candidates were on the ballot, De Gaulle got 45 per cent of the vote. He needed a simple majority to win.

Most opposition votes were divided among Mitterrand, who received 32 per cent, right-winger Jean-Louis Tixier-Vignancour, 5 per cent, and centrist Jean Lecanuet, 15 per cent.

Mitterrand likely will benefit from the right wing's image of De Gaulle as the symbol of the French empire's dismemberment. Tixier-Vignancour has asked his supporters to vote for Mitterrand. Lecanuet, whose principal campaign plank was a united Europe, has asked his 3.7 million supporters not to vote for De Gaulle. But he did not openly endorse Mitterrand either.

Saigon Curfew Ordered To Curb Terrorism

3 South Viet Outposts Overrun By Red Forces

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—The Viet Cong overran three government outposts in the Saigon area tonight and sustained their terrorist campaign within the city with a grenade assault on a mobile police checkpoint.

To safeguard American troops from the recurring terrorist attacks, the U.S. military command ordered a dusk - to-dawn curfew until further notice for all U.S. personnel in Saigon except those on duty.

Afield, old hatreds boiled again between military units of mountaineers and lowlanders of South Viet Nam in the central highlands, though they are allies in the war against the Viet Cong.

A sharp firefight developed between U.S. paratroopers of the 173rd Airborne Brigade and a Viet Cong band in the jungles 40-miles east of this city. A guerrilla bullet wounded Associated Press photographer Al Chang, 41, in the head and knocked him out for a while. Treated in the field, he returned to Saigon tonight.

The Viet Cong struck at Thu Duc, 10 miles north of Saigon, and overran three outposts manned by government forces.

The American curfew move was clearly aimed at minimizing the effects of any terrorist acts the Viet Cong may be planning for the fifth anniversary of their movement Monday or during the Christmas holidays.

The curfew, which goes into effect at midnight tonight, was ordered for an indefinite period. But there were indications it will be reviewed after the Christmas holidays.

In other developments, mountain tribesmen in South Viet Nam's central highland sent their political dissatisfaction boiling over into violence Friday night and today and some bloodshed resulted.

Reports of developments were still sketchy, but it was learned that the Montagnards fought government troops in Phu Bon Province where a district chief was reported killed.

It was believed the government troops suffered numerous casualties and the dissident tribesmen were reported in control of Phu Tien, the district capital, at least up to midday today.

Negotiations were going on with government authorities, but their outcome, if any, was not immediately known.

The other provinces involved were Quang Duc, Darlac and Pleiku.

At Gia Nghia in Quang Duc Province, two battalions of government troops moved in and the Montagnards who had stormed into the provincial capital 100 miles north of Saigon gave up and agreed to negotiate.

There was even less information on the situation in other areas, but reports said there was some question about the status of several civil irregular defense group camps, installations that are manned by the mountain tribesmen.

British Leader Departs

Wilson Wins U.S. Help In Embargo On Rhodesia

WASHINGTON (AP) — British Prime Minister Harold Wilson leaves Washington today after winning U.S. support for an oil embargo against Rhodesia.

On Viet Nam, the other main topic of his two days of talks with President Johnson, Wilson told a news conference Friday night that his country has received no "positive response" in efforts to bring peace, but that Britain will "vigorously pursue every possibility leading to the conference table."

He spoke just a few hours after U.S. disclosure of peace feelers from President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam on a day that also saw Hanoi reject the latest British proposal for a Viet Nam peace conference.

The British ban against shipment of oil into Rhodesia can't be matched by the United States, but a State Department spokesman said: "We fully recognize the authority of Her Majesty's government in this matter and therefore are advising all U.S. citizens and enterprises to comply."

He said American oil companies had promised cooperation. Rhodesia receives most of its oil through a Persian Gulf consortium of American, British, French and Kuwait oil firms.

Wilson said he was confident the embargo would restore what he called constitutional rule in Rhodesia, and added: "The earlier it happens the less bitterness there will be and less danger of setting Africa in flames." Rhodesia's white government has declared unilateral independence from Britain. The country has about 225,000 whites and 4 million Negroes.

Board Ruling Now Waited As Phillis' Hearing Ends

By JAMES HUCKA
Review Staff Writer

COLUMBUS — Whether Russell Phillis, ousted superintendent of the Columbiana County home, abused patients or used necessary restraining force, and whether he was intoxicated or only a social drinker at times, is expected to be decided by the Ohio Personnel Board of Review in about three weeks.

The issues of intoxication, abuse, failure to perform duties are tied in with the appeal of the ex-superintendent against his removal from office in October by the Columbiana County commissioners.

PHILLIS WAS on the witness stand four hours Friday afternoon as the hearing ended before the board.

The tall, light-haired Phillis said he occasionally "lightly" nudged an inmate with his leg and foot, but denied, almost categorically, charges he had abused inmates and patients.

During the session yesterday which lasted six hours, an Ohio Highway patrolman testified he had seen Phillis at the home Oct. 1 and believed the superintendent was drunk.

During his session on the stand, Phillis denied being intoxicated at any time, but said at times he had one or two highballs.

He testified he may have had two drinks Oct. 1 — "but was not drunk" — when Ohio Highway patrolmen and county sheriff's deputies were summoned to the County Home to investigate reports of "trouble." But his testimony clashed with that of Patrolman Daniel Sumrok of Post 15 at Lisbon, who said Phillis' "bloodshot eyes" along with "poor pronunciation of words" and a "weaving back and forth," caused him to believe the superintendent was intoxicated.

PATROLMAN SUMROK also said he detected a "moderate" odor of alcohol on Phillis' breath.

Atty. William Brokaw, counsel for Phillis, asked Sumrok what words the superintendent mispronounced. The officer replied he could not recall. Brokaw also asked if he knew Phillis ordinarily shifted back and forth while in a standing position and Sumrok said he had not met Phillis prior to Oct. 1.

While Phillis was on the stand, he said "a degree of force is sometimes needed to make certain inmates carry out instructions." "You have to have discipline at these institutions," he stated.

Phillis, a Republican, has contended his removal from office by Commissioners Max Gard and Frank Wilson, Democrats, was a political move.

As for drinking on the job, Phillis said he had three or four highballs about two or three times a week in his private quarters and after working hours.

He denied Columbiana County Prosecutor J. Warren Bettis' suggestion that his drinking may have made him abusive.

Another witness, Mrs. Madeline Anderson, a cook at the home, testified she never saw Phillis take a drink or strike a patient. She said he was considerate of the inmates.

BETTY PHILLIS, the wife of the former superintendent and matron at the home, testified that some force was necessary

Long Kohler Strike Ends In Wisconsin

COHLER, Wis. (AP) — Labor peace, sealed by a handshake, has returned to this tiny Wisconsin town, wracked for 11½ years by a bitter struggle between the Kohler Co. and the United Auto Workers.

A final agreement was reached Friday as the plumbingware firm agreed to pay $4.5 million in back pay and pensions. The pact was sealed with a handshake by two adversaries, Emil Mazey, U.A.W. secretary-treasurer, and Lyman C. Conger, Kohler vice president and general counsel.

"I'm sure glad it's settled in the peaceful manner it was," said Arthur E. Bauer, 67, who was vice president of Local 833 when the strike began — April 5, 1954. "Everybody concerned can begin doing a little good for the community instead of fighting."

The strike was marked by six years of violence, then by five years of legal battles after the walkout ended in 1960. The dispute reached the U.S. Supreme Court several times.

The agreement, announced jointly by the company and the union, will provide $3 million in back pay to approximately 1,400 former strikers. The National Labor Relations Board will decide who gets what, with individual amounts expected to range up to $10,000. Restoration of pension rights will account for at least another $1.5 million. When it began the strike involved 2,779 of Kohler's 3,300 workers, according to union leaders. Local 833 accused the family-owned Kohler firm of union-busting tactics. Although arbitration machinery, seniority rights and wages were involved, union security was the main strike issue.

Kohler also is complying with NLRB orders to reinstate 57 workers it dismissed during the strike on misconduct charges.

Strike violence, ranging from fistfights to rioting, had rocked this company town of 1,524 people just outside the Lake Michigan port of Sheboygan as Kohler resumed production with non-strikers after an eight-week shut-down in 1954. The bloodiest battle was a 1955 riot at Sheboygan over unloading of freighter cargo consigned to Kohler. The ship finally was turned away.

In 1960 the NLRB ruled that Kohler had prolonged the strike through unfair labor practices. It ordered reinstatement of an estimated 1,700 remaining strikers, but upheld the dismissal of 78 workers. Last year the NLRB ordered 57 of them rehired and said Kohler had caused the strike by trying to destroy the union.

In 1962 the company and union negotiated their first contract in eight years. The last one-year pact expired recently, but was extended from day to day during negotiations.

Local 833 members were to vote tonight on whether to ratify a new contract agreement reached as part of the settlement talks.

Program Set Up In Pennsylvania On Birth Control

HARRISBURG (AP) — A program to provide birth control information and medical services to public assistance recipients was announced Friday by the state Welfare Department.

Secretary Arlin M. Adams said the new policy "will make clear that the subject of birth control is not to be discussed with persons on public assistance who have religious convictions against it." And staff members with such religious convictions will not be required to participate in such discussions.

Adams said that all medically-approved methods of family planning, "including specifically instruction in the rhythm method, an approach sanctioned by the Catholic churches, will be reimbursable to physicians and medical clinics." He continued: "The new policy reflects the views that family planning methods are medical procedures and therefore should be available to assistance recipients who could not otherwise afford family planning, in the same manner as other medical services."

Another Vacancy Filled By Smith

CHARLESTON (AP) — The next - to - last of six vacancies which have occurred in the West Virginia House of Delegates since the last meeting of the legislature was filled Friday with Gov. Hulett C. Smith's appointment of Mrs. Maxie Mathis of Wayne.

She will fill the vacancy caused by the death of her husband, former Del. Boyd Mathis, D-Wayne. The appointment is for his unexpired term, which ends Nov. 30, 1966.

Still to be filled before the convening of the 1966 legislature on Jan. 12 is the vacancy caused by the death of Del. Paul H. Kidd, D-Gilmer.

Kidd represented the three-county 7th Delegate District. The replacement procedure is for the governor to choose an appointee from a list of three nominees to be picked by the district's Democratic Executive Committee. The list has not yet been submitted to Smith.

Hearing

Stanley D. Simcox of Chester, also faces a hearing before McGeehan, with the date still to be set. He also is free on $2,500 bond.

Grimes, who waived extradition before East Liverpool Municipal Judge Samuel Chertoff before being arraigned at Midland, was arrested by East Liverpool police last Saturday following the robbery attempt. He had been a patient at City Hospital until 9:37 Friday morning after being transferred there from city jail last Sunday when he complained of chest pains.

Senator Facing Speeding Charge In Pennsylvania

HARRISBURG (AP) — The arrest of state Sen. George N. Wade, chairman of the Senate Highways Committee, on a speeding charge was disclosed Friday by a justice of the peace.

Wade, a Republican senator from Cumberland County and a leader of the opposition against use of radar for speed checks on state highways, told a newspaper the charge against him was "purely political." Use of radar was voted by the 1963 legislature.

Kenneth H. Ginter, a justice of the peace in East Pennsboro Township, Cumberland County, said Wade had been notified by mail from his office of charges of speeding and passing another vehicle in a no-passing zone.

The magistrate said Wade was charged with traveling 70 miles an hour in a 50-mile zone.

Ginter said the senator was arrested on Route 11-15 at 5:45 p.m. on Dec. 2. He said Wade was notified of the charges by letter on Wednesday. The notice said Wade would have 10 days in which to respond, either to ask for a hearing before the justice of the peace or waive the matter into court.

Conviction on either charge could entail a $10 fine and possible loss of driving privileges. Ginter said radar was not involved in Wade's case. The magistrate said Wade was arrested by patrolman William Pelton of East Pennsboro Township.

Asphyxiation Claims

Woman, 82, In Fire

CLEVELAND (AP) — An 82-year-old woman apparently died of asphyxiation today during a fire at a tavern.

Stella Pickul, who lived above the Cucamonga Lounge, was pronounced dead at St. Lukes Hospital. Firemen said the cause of the blaze is still undetermined.

Phillis

to handle some of the patients with emotional problems.

She said this involved leading a patient by the arm or placing your arms on a patient's shoulders.

She testified that her husband drank only "socially" and that she had never seen him intoxicated.

The blonde wife of the ex-superintendent, who wore a green dress, described her husband as "a man who gets along wonderfully with people." She was a nurse at the home when she married Phillis in 1964, five months after he divorced his first wife.

While her husband was on the stand, he gave a demonstration, with James Primm, assistant county prosecutor, of how he would use "physical persuasion" in carrying out his duties or restraining an inmate.

One method was to nudge a person from behind with the leg and foot, another was to place the arm about the other's shoulders to guide.

Dressed in a dark suit, the former superintendent sat calmly on the stand, responding to questions in a direct fashion.

Bettis, during cross-examination, pressed Phillis on whether he was going to term all the prosecution witnesses "liars" about their testimony.

Phillis hesitated, then answered it was possible some things reported were not quite correct.

CONSIDERABLE amount of time was spent questioning Phillis about records of the home, its patients and employees.

Another matter discussed was Phillis' attitude toward Freeman Strabley of Salineville, hired by the commissioners as an efficiency expert.

Strabley had testified earlier of friction with Phillis during Strabley's visits to the home and how Phillis had ordered him to leave, using abusive language.

Phillis said Strabley had not conferred with him about costs or operations of the home. He said it was possible he had called Strabley "stupid" on occasion.

Another witness yesterday was Clarence Robinson, Lisbon auto salesman, who reported about operations of the home while he was county commissioner in 1940-53.

James Woodson of Lisbon R.D. 4, farm manager at the home, said he never saw Phillis do any of the things for which he was discharged.

Woodson said he and Phillis would at times have a social drink together in Phillis' quarters.

Earl Allison, chairman of the board, said because of the length of the hearings and the upcoming holidays, he doubted if a ruling on the appeal could be made in less than two weeks.

Gemini

soon as Borman and Lovell are aboard the ship.

Sunday they will be flown to Cape Kennedy for a down-to-earth rendezvous with the two men who made history with them on Wednesday. Schirra and Stafford.

They were flown off the carrier to the Cape Friday and began telling experts of their dramatic meeting in space. Their information will help write the textbook for flights to the moon.

Shortly after they arrived at the Cape, Schirra and Stafford underwent two hours of medical checks then spent nearly three hours reviewing their trip.

The pair went to bed early and were scheduled to tell project officials this morning how they chased and rendezvoused with Gemini 7.

This afternoon, they were to review the techniques they used to fly in formation with their sister ship and discuss separation of the spacecrafts after the historic get-together.

Schirra and Stafford are to return to the Houston Space Center Monday.

The great moments of the rendezvous were brought to the public Friday in movie and still pictures made by Schirra and Stafford.

Remarkable pictures in brilliant color, the photos vividly show Gemini 7 whipping along at 17,500 miles an hour, maneuvering occasionally with a burst of flame from one of its jet thrusters. In the foreground is the nose of Gemini 6.

Borman and Lovell snapped similar pictures of Gemini 6.

The two craft flew close together — from 6 to 200 feet — for more than five hours, practicing various maneuvers.

Berry said Borman and Lovell were a little tired but in excellent physical shape as they neared the end of their marathon journey.

As Gemini 7 soared toward its climax, Gemini officials began assessing the flight.

Flight Director Christopher C. Kraft Jr. called the rendezvous a major milestone in manned space flight and said it provided confidence for planning more elaborate rendezvous and docking maneuvers.

Berry said of Gemini 7:

"We have learned about crew performance, or just the fact that man can live in a space environment for that period of time — not only that he can live there but that he can perform there at a very high level of performance."

Berry said that it appears after seven or eight days man is able to adapt himself readily to space.

Meanwhile, officials were planning ahead for Gemini 8. The Titan 2 booster rocket, spacecraft and the Agena target vehicle are to be delivered to Cape Kennedy next month for a March or April launching.

Astronauts Neil Armstrong, a civilian, and Air Force Capt. David R. Scott are to try to link up with the Agena during a two-to-three-day flight. For about 90 minutes, Scott will leave the space ship for a stroll in space.

That Remarkable Earth Creature!

"What a piece of work is man!" Shakespeare exclaimed.

He can dream of a way to soar just beyond the pull of gravity and just short of the Great Beyond—and he can ponder his dream for generations before he finally learns how to shoot himself into space with a rocket and go into an earth orbit.

He can begin then to think of a way to shoot himself beyond the gravitational field and soar outward into space, first to the moon, later to other planets in the earth's solar system, eventually into that part of infinity which lies within his mental grasp—and come back to search.

He can conceive of miraculous machines to carry out the computations that will enable him to do this with precision—a tether of knowledge to keep him from becoming a lost soul wandering among the stars where time is measured in years of light.

This marvelous creature can turn from dreamer to artisan and build with his hands the first crude chariots to carry him on his celestial journey.

He can squeeze his frail body into a contraption that transforms him by scientific ledger-domain into a demigod. By dint of logic and curiosity, he can undergo stresses and tortures that would have torn the fabric of his soul in the dark days of primitivism.

All this and infinitely more he can do without losing his sense of proportion, his touch on reality and a leavening humor that buoys his spirit as surely as his physical environment buoys his body and keeps his brain alert.

Men do these things, moreover, in the name of all men. Whether they think of themselves as cosmonauts or astronauts, as one nationality or another, they know their achievements will redound to the credit of all men everywhere.

Those who follow their flight from the ground—the members of the scientific teams, their families, the citizens of the countries that provide the vast investments mankind is making in its future in this 20th century—have gained a longer perspective than they ever had before. The horizon now is in space, not just a segment of earth.

Only 38 years ago, an American aviator broke the aerial trail from west to east across the North Atlantic, flying alone in a private stunt project to demonstrate the reliability of airplanes. Since Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., the whole nature of Western society has been altered to make trail-blazing a joint responsibility.

We do not know everything the directors of space exploration will learn from Gemini 7 and its passengers, Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr.

We do know they have learned to their satisfaction and ours that men can stay aloft in earth orbit longer than it would take them to fly to the moon and back.

"What a piece of work is man!"

On Comparisons With Korea

Human memory is tricky, but there can be no doubt about the state of popular feeling on the Korean War in the national campaign of 1952. Americans were tired of it.

If there is going to be speculation about a political issue growing out of the war in Viet Nam, too, the speculation should take into account what the record shows about the political issue that grew out of the war in Korea.

War hawks had been advocating all-out war and speaking of Gen. MacArthur as a martyr because President Truman had clipped his wings. They were pretty well subdued by the end of the 1952 campaign. Several hundred thousand Chinese "volunteers" had caused a drastic reappraisal of victory prospects.

Dwight D. Eisenhower, acting on the advice of his campaign managers, dropped "the bomb" in a speech in Detroit's Masonic Auditorium Oct. 24. He promised "to forego the diversions of politics . . . and concentrate on the job of ending the Korean War," if elected.

He promised to make a personal trip to Korea, if necessary. That did it.

He did not make it clear how he intended to end the war and he very clearly avoided any hint of ending it by anything but a show of strength.

'Village' Is A Happy Word

Golden Age villages for Ohio, as promised by Gov. James A. Rhodes, now can materialize. The State Controlling Board has cleared the way for construction of the "villages" on sites already chosen in Columbus and Toledo.

Pending the next move in this project outlined by the governor in his successful 1962 campaign, already accredited Golden Agers, soon-to-be Golden Agers and all others interested in the problem of how to take care of the aged should come to terms on what a Golden Age Village should be.

In the first place, it shouldn't be a village, which is a small settlement in the country, something less than a town.

In the second place, it should be closely integrated with a bustling community, because the one thing that genuinely old persons need least of all is more loneliness—more awareness of having outlived their contemporaries—of being the last leaf on the tree.

In the third place, old persons do not relish being shut away from the bustle-bustle of the everyday world in the company of others in the same situation, unless the monotony of this stratified society is relieved by the sight and sound of younger people.

In the fourth place, a Golden Age Village must avoid the impression of being a motel-style barracks for aged persons who in a former era were housed in barrack-type structures supposedly made more attractive than they really were by calling them "cottages."

The idea of the "villages," as we recall the presentation away back there in 1962, was to get as many oldsters as possible out of "cottages" and into "villages." No one can object to that.

But it does no harm to remember that formerly the idea was to get more people into

But the implication of his comment was clear to Adlai E. Stevenson and his advisers. Gov. Stevenson said: "A slick speech writer from a slick magazine (Emmet J. Hughes of Life magazine) cooks up a slick idea that gets votes by playing upon our hopes for a quick end to the war and the general accepted immediately."

President Truman ridiculed the Eisenhower statement. He said the Republican candidate had committed a fraud. Most political observers believed it was the fatal blow to Stevenson's hopes and the master stroke of a campaign that had needed something to give it a strong final push. They listened to public opinion, not officialdom.

It never was easy to know in 1952 who were the hawks and the doves in officialdom, and it isn't easy to know in 1965. But it was no secret in 1952 that the American people as a whole wanted to get their fighting forces out of Korea alive.

If comparisons between Korea and Viet Nam are going to be made, the state of popular opinion in 1952 and 1953, when the war ended, should be the basis of comparison.

When the American people feel about war in Viet Nam as they felt about war in Korea in October 1952, after the fighting had gone on since June 1950, the situation will be analogous.

"cottages" and out of the "dormitories" that once housed people who had to be taken care of because time, first had slowed them down, then caught up to them.

Names can change faster sometimes than facts.

Seasonal Quote

There are as many ways for football coaches and baseball managers to react when they get fired as there are individuals in these touchy jobs.

But no one in this season of shuffling jobs will say it more tactfully than Paul Richards when given his walking papers as general manager of the Houston Astros.

"The judge (Roy Hofmeier) thinks Grady Hatton and Tal Smith can run the club better than our group," said Richards. "That's 100 per cent okay with me. It's his team. He wasn't satisfied with its progress. I've never been able to question the right of a man who owns a ball club to do with it as he pleases. I may not agree with it, but I don't question his right."

The birds-and-bees truth about shuffling coaches and managers is, of course, that they look upon the shuffling as part of the job. Barring a tie, every game must end in a victory for one team and a loss for the other. A manager or coach whose team can't win most of the time will be blamed for the losses. So he is replaced by someone else, meaning he then expects to be hired by some other team whose manager or coach has walked the plank.

Baseball manager Richards is available. If his time comes to be fired again, he won't squawk. A man who owns a ball club can do anything with it he pleases. Paul Richards may not agree but he will say nothing. What more could an owner ask?

They let him know the two-idea system is still working in France, as it is still working in every society whose citizens are free to discuss their individual and collective problems.

They signified to De Gaulle and all present and future French politicians that they want the government in power to have an opposition.

It would not be the splintered opposition whose incessant playing of piddling politics for the sake of the game, mindless of the welfare of France, brought Gaullists into power. It would be an opposition strong enough to challenge anyone with an inclination to believe, as King Louis XIV believed, that he himself was the state.

Charles de Gaulle is a great patriot. He will take his place in history as a great Frenchman. He will be the greater for having survived his moment of truth last Dec. 5. He knows now that France does not want another Louis XIV.

Beatnik-ism Haunts Labor Leaders

By Victor Riesel

SAN FRANCISCO

There's a war on—but the message apparently has not gotten through to the new beatnik generation of young workers, who are flooding into the swiftly expanding ammunition, weapons and aircraft plants.

Word among the nation's thousand top labor chiefs who have been conferring here for weeks is that the campus spirit of automatic rebellion and a desire for elephantine instant improvements in every new wage contract has spread among the newcomers to work force.

And the labor leaders, harassed by constant taunting over their age and maturity are deeply worried by this beatnik-ism, which found unionism when it arrived and appears to be paying little heed to their experienced leaders.

As a result there have been crippling defense strikes and a series of telephone calls from the White House and Pentagon chiefs to labor leaders here desperately seeking help in quenching the industrial fires.

MOST RECENT CALL came from the secretary of the Army to machinists' union leader Roy Siemiller. The Army was disturbed over a possible shortage of "ball powder." This is the most vital ingredient of ammunition for the Garand M16 automatic rifle carried by the courageous Green Berets, the Special Forces men, the Air Cavalry and other hard fighting American troops in Viet Nam.

There is but one plant in the U.S. making such "ball powder,"—and that is the East Alton, Ill. Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp. installation.

When the Army secretary telephoned, the plant had been struck by rebellious members of the International Association of Machinists for 13 days.

More than ball powder was involved. Production of ammunition for machine guns, mortar flares, bomb shells and other basic metals had been stalled during the strike.

MACHINIST UNION leaders had accepted what they believed was a fine contract, but the rank and file voted it down. They shouted for triple time pay on holidays, though the ammo was needed by foot soldiers on a front where neither they nor death take a holiday.

They argued over technicalities involving vacations, the length of the contract, special fringes. But the basic issues were seniority, who got on what line of promotion and got bumped to where and also the cost-of-living escalation clause. So the rebels voted down the contract agreement though some young troops now no longer are among the living as the war escalates.

Immediately on hearing from the Army secretary, the machinist president, Roy Siemiller, peeled off one of his top convention delegates and rushed him from the AFL-CIO sixth constitutional convention to the strike front.

The emissary was machinist Vice President Eugene Glover who had worked round the clock to halt a similarly rebellious strike at the St. Louis installation of McDonnell Aircraft which paralyzed the production of phantom jets—a plane vital in the harassment of the Viet Cong.

MR. SIEMILLER, now an AFL-CIO vice president, appeared troubled as he spoke to this columnist. He believed the Olin Mathieson strike was a spill-over from the McDonnell stoppage and hopes that spill-over-ism will not spread across the land.

The troubled veteran labor leader also hoped the younger work force coming out of school into instant unionism would understand what it took older unionists to learn over several decades.

He said that the younger men and women were disturbed and insecure because of the stepped up drafting of men into the armed services. He opined that the revolts on the campus was catching on among the younger workers in the shops.

Mr. Siemiller is not alone. Many other labor leaders, now in touch with the Pentagon and President Johnson, fear similar outbreaks as younger men attempt to get as much as they can during the war boom and the scarcity of skilled man-power.

ONE LABOR CHIEF also with problems is the stagehands' Dick Walsh, many of whose followers handle intricate mechanism around the space and missile bases. He had long conversations with the head of the Presidents' missile site labor commission. Some of his younger followers are restless.

Special Army and Navy industrial troubleshooters have conferred here for days with leaders of the construction unions. Recently, at the Pentagon's request, clothing manufacturers met with Jack Potofsky, president, and other officials of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers to discuss the immediate speeding of production of millions of uniforms.

Everywhere the word is that labor must prepare to supply the equipment and the weapons for a land army of 500,000 troops in Viet Nam.

The national labor chiefs are 25 years older than they were during World War II, and they are hoping that the new and younger work forces does not take this as a personal insult.

There is nothing instant about experience. Nor is it expendable. Nor should it go unheeded. The national labor chiefs hope the message will get through.

Unpunished Crime

By David Lawrence

Incitement Poses Court Problem

Everyone with a sense of fairness deplors the action of a jury which acquits a person who, according to the evidence, is clearly guilty of murder. There have been several cases recently which have aroused national attention. Whether in each instance the defendant was actually guilty of the offense is hard for persons to tell when they themselves have not heard all the evidence but a wave of suspicion has swept the country, and people generally feel that in certain racial cases murder has gone unpunished. In fact, the words "murder unpunished" headlined an editorial on the subject in The New York Times the other day.

David Lawrence

Until intensive thought is given to the effects of another kind of wrong in American life today, the biggest concern of the public will be expressed in the words of an even more tragic headline—namely, "incitement unpunished."

The jury system is not perfect but it seems much less risky to let 12 persons, rather than one, decide whether human life is to be ended for an accused person. The problem isn't going to be solved by making murder a federal crime when it is related to racial friction. Conceivably this could increase the number of juries which will disagree. The answer lies rather in tackling the causes of jury prejudice.

BITTERNESS IN A COMMUNITY does not arise over isolated differences of opinion but over what is generally considered rank injustice. The antagonisms which have been created since the 1954 decision of the Supreme Court on desegregation of the schools have been steadily increasing. Now, with the passage of civil rights laws by Congress, the resentments in particular regions of the country are running far ahead of the reconciliations.

It takes time to change public opinion in any locality where certain customs have prevailed for nearly two centuries. The concept of fair play for persons of every race is readily accepted in theory by knowledgeable individuals but it isn't so easy for the less informed and the emotionally inclined to abandon deep-seated prejudices.

Juries are hard to select anyway and the prosecuting attorney and counsel for the defendant usually strive to pick persons who will be fair. Jury duty, however, in cases involving racial questions has been made more difficult because of the waves of emotion which have surrounded the issues. This shows no signs of diminution as incitement continues.

THUS, THE SUPREME COURT of the United States finds technicalities or ignores realities when persons plainly trespassing on private property and inciting disorder are exonerated on the theory that a store is not a private but a public establishment. It isn't hard to convince many average citizens nowadays that the highest jury in the country—the Supreme Court of the United States—is itself prejudiced, too.

What, moreover, shall be said of the crusades of the demonstrators who come from far and wide to denounce a local community and engage in polemics that stir up antagonisms? Does all this make easier the selection of a jury from people who are already embittered because the practice of civil disobedience is upheld as legal and proper not only by the courts but by churchmen and religious organizations?

INCITEMENT TO VIOLENCE has gone unpunished and, indeed, is rationalized as free speech. The argument is hard that, after all, the objective is a worthy one and that it doesn't matter what happens because "the end justifies the means." Anyone with the slightest knowledge of what breeds prejudice in a community can hardly ignore the effect that racial consciousness has had on individual citizens in the South as well, as in other parts of the country in recent months. Jurors are not readily selected who can forget their own innermost prejudices or who feel they can face their neighbors and fellow townsmen after the trial if they go "against the tide."

Education on the merits of the jury system is more than ever important. Some day, when public opinion in America really clamps down on irresponsible demonstrations and marches that have embittered millions of people, there will be a change in the attitude of many persons in the South. Then the way will be opened to convince citizens in every section of the country that anyone who commits murder must be punished no matter what may be his or her race or religion or political or social or economic position in the community.

Jewish Rites Open Tonight

Jewry of the East Liverpool area will begin the observance of Hanukkah, the post-Biblical Festival of Lights, tonight at sundown.

The eight-day festival celebrates the victory of a small band of Maccabees against the armies of the Syrian king, Antiochus.

Festive lights are lit in the home and synagogue and are symbolic of the belief that ultimate victory does not belong to the mighty in military power, or to the many in numbers, but to those who are filled with the spirit of God.

The kindling of lights in the Jewish home is the characteristic feature of the festival.

One light is kindled the first evening and another each evening until the eighth are lighted. Special prayers are recited and portions of the Torah are read in the synagogue each day.

HOME

A SPECTRAL hush hung over the Chester Bridge, accented by the eerie wailing in the girders as a harsh, cold wind blew in chill eddies from the surface of the Ohio River.

Snowflakes whirled briefly through the globs of yellow light at intervals, then vanished into darkness. An occasional car sped across the lonely span, breaking the silence for a moment with the hiss of tires on the wet blacktop.

Out of the gloom, walking with a slow, shuffling step, came the figure of a man, his topcoat collar turned high and his old-fashioned hat pulled nearly over his ears to help escape the chill.

The overly-long coat, obviously a hand-me-down, dragged and fluttered halfway between his knees and his ankles and his trousers flapped around his thin legs.

A PINCHED FACE covered with a sparse growth of grey whiskers was nearly hidden by the coat's collar. And in one gloved hand he carried an incongruous, expensive alligator suitcase.

Labels on the bag spoke of sunny, faraway places the man never had seen—"Sail the Sunny Caribbean," cried one in vivid blues and yellows. "American Express," another said in fading blue and white. "Shepherd's Hotel, Cairo," another advertised—speaking of former owners who did not know the suitcase had wound up in a transients' mission in Virginia.

The man looked up occasionally against the bitter wind to keep his bearings on the narrow bridge walk. He glanced in- curiously, then, at the inky surface of the river, barely visible through the growing snowstorm.

His pace quickened when he saw a black and white sign mounted on a bridge pillar to his right.

"East Liverpool Corporation Limit," it said, and he paused a moment to read it again as though encouraging his mind to accept the message.

As he stepped off the bridge approach onto E. 3rd St., he paused, placed the suitcase carefully at his feet and looked around as though searching for a familiar sight.

William Jennings Bryan Coleman had come home for Christmas.

HOME AFTER 47 years, he thought. Home as an old man to the place I left as a young man of 20. Memories and regrets and visions of the past rushed in for a moment, but he shook them free of his mind, grasped the suitcase and shuffled forward again.

To his right, he remembered, was Thompson Place, so home was to his left straight into the teeth of the wind and the snow.

Huge neon signs smote his eyes and he saw near-vacant parking lots outside brightly-lighted business places.

This can't be the place, he thought in near-panic, and then he remembered how long he had been away. His gaze roved from side to side as he shuffled along the unfamiliar sidewalk. Time and gradual change had made an unfamiliar commercial district out of once-quiet E. 3rd St.

But as he moved westward a familiar shape bulked out of the gloom. It was the Thompson House, it had to be, because it squatted hugely in its accustomed place, a familiar landmark in a sea of change. And there, flickering slightly near the entrance, was a neon sign that announced: "Thompson Hotel."

William Jennings Bryan Coleman realized his mind was feverish from the effects of probable pneumonia, complicating tuberculosis. But he knew, too, that the hotel sign was not a mirage. Assured now of his bearings, he shuffled a little faster as he neared the intersection of E. 3rd St. and Broadway.

THERE WAS A DEEP, reverberating "boom" as he reached the corner and it sent his mind racing back to East Liverpool of his boyhood. That had to be the clock in the tower atop Central School. No other sound in the world could duplicate the commanding, yet friendly tone that literally seemed to shimmer in the bitterly-cold air.

Eleven more times the booming tone resounded with marked cadence.

It was midnight. It was Christmas.

Turning left, the old man shuffled down the slight grade of Broadway's approach to the river and with each step he saw sights that were vaguely familiar. The street still was lined with buildings that he remembered from his youth. Their facades were familiar and the rococo outline formed by their rooflines had not changed. But the storefronts that faced the sidewalk were unfamiliar, as though they had aged in the subtle way of living things.

The oily dark bulk of the Ohio River loomed straight ahead, touched in places by spots of light reflected from the opposite shore.

Strange, he thought, how much wider the river seems now. The navigation lights on the Chester Bridge were on his left now, high above and seen dimly through the snow and darkness.

A towboat's deep-throated horn startled him for a moment. Ah, the steam whistles are gone, he thought to himself. I suppose there isn't a sidewheeler left on the river!

For a moment he remembered the packet Ben Hur tied up at the Broadway wharf, discharging cargo and passengers with great hurry and confusion while bare-footed little boys stood on the bank and watched the titan in the pilothouse, the heavily-laden drays and the crates of cackling chickens.

AND HE THOUGHT of excursion boats that plied the Ohio on hot afternoons; swimming in the fresh, green water off Babb's Island; the excitement when a showboat tied up for a one-night stand.

But the junction of E. 2nd St. was looming ahead and he swung to the right, catching his toe in potholes in the black-top pavement as he crossed Broadway, heading west again.

The sidewalk became more uneven—mixed stretches of concrete and brick with an occasional patch of weed-grown earth.

Strange, he thought, they certainly have let the sidewalks run down. That's bad for business.

Streetlights were only intermittent cones of yellow, spaced sparsely through long tunnels of gloom. No one moved on the sidewalks. The street was empty of traffic and the shuffle of his feet echoed loudly.

Then, dimly seen on his left, the railroad station loomed through the dark.

I've come full circle, he thought, back to the place where I stood in 1918, anxious to leave this town.

He remembered the crowded station on the April afternoon 47 years ago as he stood on the platform waiting for the train that would take him to Pittsburgh to enlist in the 28th Division. There was a hustle of businessmen headed to and fro on errands and a newsboy pushed through the crowd, selling the latest War Extra of The Evening Review.

THE LOCOMOTIVE puffed into the station and stopped with wheezing, explosive exhaust of steam.

And William Jennings Bryan Coleman climbed aboard, saying goodbye to East Liverpool and all that was familiar to him.

Forty-seven years, he thought. It seems like eons.

His mind raced back, then, to the training camp and the troop transport that carried his outfit to France. He thought wistfully of Paris and painfully of the trenches along Western Front. Experiences of nearly a year were compressed in-furniture shop day after endless day until the passing of time was almost unnoticed. The Black October of 1929 was less than a year away when he walked through the gates at Atlanta.

And while the outside world lived through a depression, fought another world war, invented the atomic bomb and jet airplanes, William Jennings Bryan Coleman stitched denim uniforms, helped cast manhole covers and ran a lathe that turned out chair rungs.

Somewhere along the way, he contracted tuberculosis. A lunger, the other cons called him, and they turned their faces or hurried away when he coughed.

But the ravages of the disease and the onset of old-age helped win him a pardon. Machinegun-wielding bootleggers from out of the past were as archaic as windmills to the new generation. They were smiled at tolerantly and listened to disinterestedly like an old war veteran and his oft-told tales.

And that's how William Jennings Bryan Coleman happened to step outside the walls at Atlanta on a crisp autumn day in 1965. Vaguely, he knew he was headed home. And it was not until the middle of December as he hitch-hiked and walked through the Shenandoah Valley that he determined to be home for Christmas.

BY THAT TIME his ill-fitting prison suit was gone and he was wearing hand-me-downs from missions along the way. The suitcase given him in Front Royal held only a few discarded newspapers he had used to fend off the chill when forced to sleep along the highway—plus his pardon papers and a mismatched pair of socks.

So William Jennings Bryan Coleman stood and stared at the outline of the railway station that had seen his departure and his return. But the vision of the past faded as he turned to trudge again along the uneven sidewalk.

His eyes swept the unfamiliar facade of a brick building next to the railroad station. And then he saw, far in the upper southeast corner, the fading letters "McKi..." and knew he was looking at what once had been the town's leading hotel, the McKinley.

The fever was upon him again and the dim glow of the streetlights seemed to expand and contract in the distance, as though controlled by a giant, erratic rheostat. When he tried to a moment's thought as he looked at the railway station, seemingly deserted now.

And then, as he relived the time that everyone called the Great War, he thought of the sequel... in the easy money days of the 1920's.

William Jennings Bryan Coleman had lost his smalltown ways somewhere in France and he lost his smalltown morals in New York City when he stepped out of a uniform into the tight trousers and jacket of civilian clothes.

Gangsters, hoodlums, racketeers the newspaper called William Jennings Bryan Coleman and his fellows, but they didn't care. It was all champagne and filet mignon and easy money until he pleaded guilty to a murder charge on a promise of leniency and was sent off to a life sentence in Atlanta.

THEN IT WAS THE tailor shop and the foundry and the to hurry, he took on a broad stance to retain his balance, so that the shuffle was more pronounced.

The dilapidated business district was behind him now, as he passed a huge mound of some dark substance covered with green plastic and glimpsed a weed-grown vacant lot on his right. Then he passed a brightly-lighted electrical substation, listening to the eerie hum that seemed to hang in mid-air all around.

NOW THE BUSINESS buildings and warehouses gave way to homes—most of them brightly lighted from cellar to attic as families shared Christmas Eve. There were garlands of lights around most of the doorways and almost every home showed a decorated evergreen at its front window.

His mind shuttled quickly from present to past, and back to the present again as he walked through scenes that were little changed from his boyhood. He could picture himself walking the same street, barefoot in the July heat, and carrying a long bamboo fishing pole.

He could picture the ice wagon clattering along the brick pavement and he could see again the big brewery wagon with its mound of kegs and its spanking Percheron team as it made deliveries to the saloons near the railway station on Saturday evenings.

He thought of skating on the river in the bitter cold of January and February and he remembered the times when daring blades drove their horses and cutters across the thick covering.

Homes lined both sides of the street now, a sure sign he was almost in his old neighborhood. Far in the distance, underneath the Newell Bridge, he could see the broad vista of the Ohio River making a wide, sweeping curve toward Wells-ville.

AND THEN HE SAW it at last—the familiar outline of home.

It crouched, dark and massive on the big corner lot, surrounded by the wrought iron fence that always had seemed to say: "This is your refuge, this is your home; the outside world cannot trouble you here."

The four thick chimneys bulked against the sky and the long porch roof kept the windows of the lower floor in a deep shadow. But it was home, almost as he had pictured it so many times in distant places.

The sidewalk seemed broken as he walked along the fence, which was strangely out of plumb. And the front gate was hanging drunkenly on its hinge. No matter, probably it had just been located again after a youthful Halloween prank and was not hung properly.

His pace quickened and the echo of his shuffling steps seemed louder as he neared the front door. Then, on impulse, he decided to enter through the kitchen—the familiar route of childhood. Momma did not like muddy tracks on her clean parlor rug.

At the kitchen door he paused a moment to find the knob in the darkness. The door swung open almost at his touch. But everything seemed dark.

Pulling a paper of matches from his coat pocket, he struck a light in the gloom before it began to flicker. He cupped it in his hands against the draft and thought for a moment the flame had died.

THEN THE GLOOM receded and brightness spread across the kitchen. The glow expanded outward until it touched the walls and illuminated even the most remote corner. As it spread, he saw the first familiar white and green pattern on the linoleum floor and then a massive dining table squatting in the center of the floor, bright with a red and white cloth.

The glow continued to spread, ever so slowly, and he saw the familiar figure seated in the high-backed chair near the stove. She roused as though from a nap, and he saw it was his mother. As she rose, she patted her silver hair into place, adjusted her rimless spectacles and smoothed the apron over her housedress.

"Willie you're home at last," she said, as though addressing a naughty boy. "Whatever kept you so long."

"I'm home to stay, Momma," he said, and clutched her to his chest. There was the familiar scent of lavender as he held his mother and he could feel her soft hair pressing against his chin.

HE GLANCED around the familiar room. Everything was as he remembered it. The old eight-day clock ticked noisily on the mantle, flanked by an almanac and Dr. Gunn's Medical Book. Nearby was a calendar of the Trotter Hardware Co.

He could see a brisk fire burning in the kitchen stove and he could smell the yeasty aroma of dough left to rise for homemade bread. There was a turkey on the drainboard of the sink, flanked by a mound of stuffing and some cranberries.

Suddenly it seemed as though he had never been away at all. It was just like those other afternoons so many years ago when he had walked home from the Third St. School, swinging his books on a strap and knocking icicles off the low eaves of the porch before he burst into the kitchen door.

Momma gathered up the cranberries and then began to mix the stuffing for the turkey. The familiar warm glow of a holiday eve hung over the room. It seemed that she accepted his presence without question.

"Everything's nearly ready now," Momma said. "It is going to be one of the nicest Christmases we've ever had."

Willie settled into a chair, and thought of his treasures and wondered about their safety. There was a baseball mitt, a hockey stick and—best of all—a big collection of marbles won in noisy games in the school yard.

AS THOUGH SHE had heard his unspoken question, his mother said: "I believe your marbles are on that beam in the cellar where you always hide them in the winter, Willie. Take a look see."

Willie walked down the dark cellarway, knowing he needed no light in the familiar place. He took four confident steps from the foot of the stairs and then reached slightly to his left.

Sure enough, there was the big wooden pillar that supported the beam. And directly above, where he knew it would be, he found the coffee can containing his marbles. They rattled reassuringly as he climbed the steps to the kitchen.

Momma still was busy with the turkey and she did not turn her back as he returned.

"I think it would be nice if we had a fire in the living-room," she said. "The wood's all laid in the fireplace—just touch a match to it."

The fireplace started with a black emptiness on the room, but Willie crumpled a sheet of newspaper, touched it aflame with a match and laid it underneath the logs.

As the flame flickered slowly, casting a dim glow, he saw the outlines of the room. He caught a glimpse of a tall evergreen in the far corner and saw the flickering flames reflected from its glass ornaments. He placed the dead match down on the hearth, remembering not to singe Momma's carpet.

He saw the light reflected dimly now in the big bay window at the front of the house. When frost covered the big pane, it was a perfect place for a little boy to write with a moist finger.

IT WAS A PLACE to doodle at Tick-tack-toe or scrawl one's initials. And a little boy peering through the window on Christmas Eve, anxiously awaiting his father's arrival, could write "Merry Christmass," misspelling the word because he was only a second grader.

The fire grew brighter and the warmth spread toward the center of the room. Willie thought how comfortable it would be to curl up before the fire and watch the play of the flames.

Placing his can of marbles carefully near his chest, he lowered himself onto his side near the hearth, resting his head on the palm of his hand to watch the spreading flames.

The flickering fire and smoke formed images that brightened for a moment, changed and died. Then he could see his mother's face, smiling through the shifting lights. Her image faded and he saw a beckoning hand.

Willie smiled, shifted comfortably and fell asleep.

IT WAS LONG BEFORE dawn when a deskman at police headquarters took the telephone call from the irate householder on W. 2nd St. A door on the old Coleman house was banging in the wind, he said. It was making an unearthly clatter and someone should see that it was closed properly so that the neighbors could get some rest.

The cruiserman knew the old house well. Once one of the and gave the message to the downtown cruiser operator.

It sent the police car along silent W. 3rd St. and down the steep, unpaved Jackson St. grade to W. 2nd St.

The cruiserman knew the old house well. Once one of the better homes in a good neighborhood, it faded into a derelict in the last decade. Police sometimes put out roving bands of youngsters who were exploring its rooms or sent a transient on his way when he bedded down inside.

The house was dark and forbidding, as usual, when the officer stopped the cruiser near the front gate. He found the front door secure and walked along the long porch to the spot where he knew he would find the kitchen entrance.

It was unlatched, sure enough, he discovered. As he opened the door wider and prepared to slam it, he thought he noticed the dust inside had been disturbed. He pulled out his flashlight for a closer look.

THE BEAM PICKED out fresh footprints in the thick dust of the bare floor. The imprint of the right foot was clear, but the mark of the left foot was blurred, as though the intruder walked unsteadily. The officer followed the erratic path of the footprints which led in a circle and then turned toward the north wall of the room. The patrolman decided the intruder had walked into the cellarway and then retraced his steps, judging from the pattern in the dust.

But he saw that the footprints led through the kitchen doorway to the next room—and there were no marks to indicate the intruder had returned. The officer flashed his light around the kitchen wall. It picked out faded wallpaper, steaming downward in long strips, and a broken sink in the corner. That was all—except for the path in the dust.

As the officer walked through the doorway into the adjoining room, the flashlight beam picked out the huddled figure of a derelict in front of the black, unused grate. He saw the charred ash left by a pitifully small remnant of newspaper that must have flared up only for a moment and then died. On the dusty hearth, there was one dead match.

He checked the prostrate figure, but he knew immediately the man was dead.

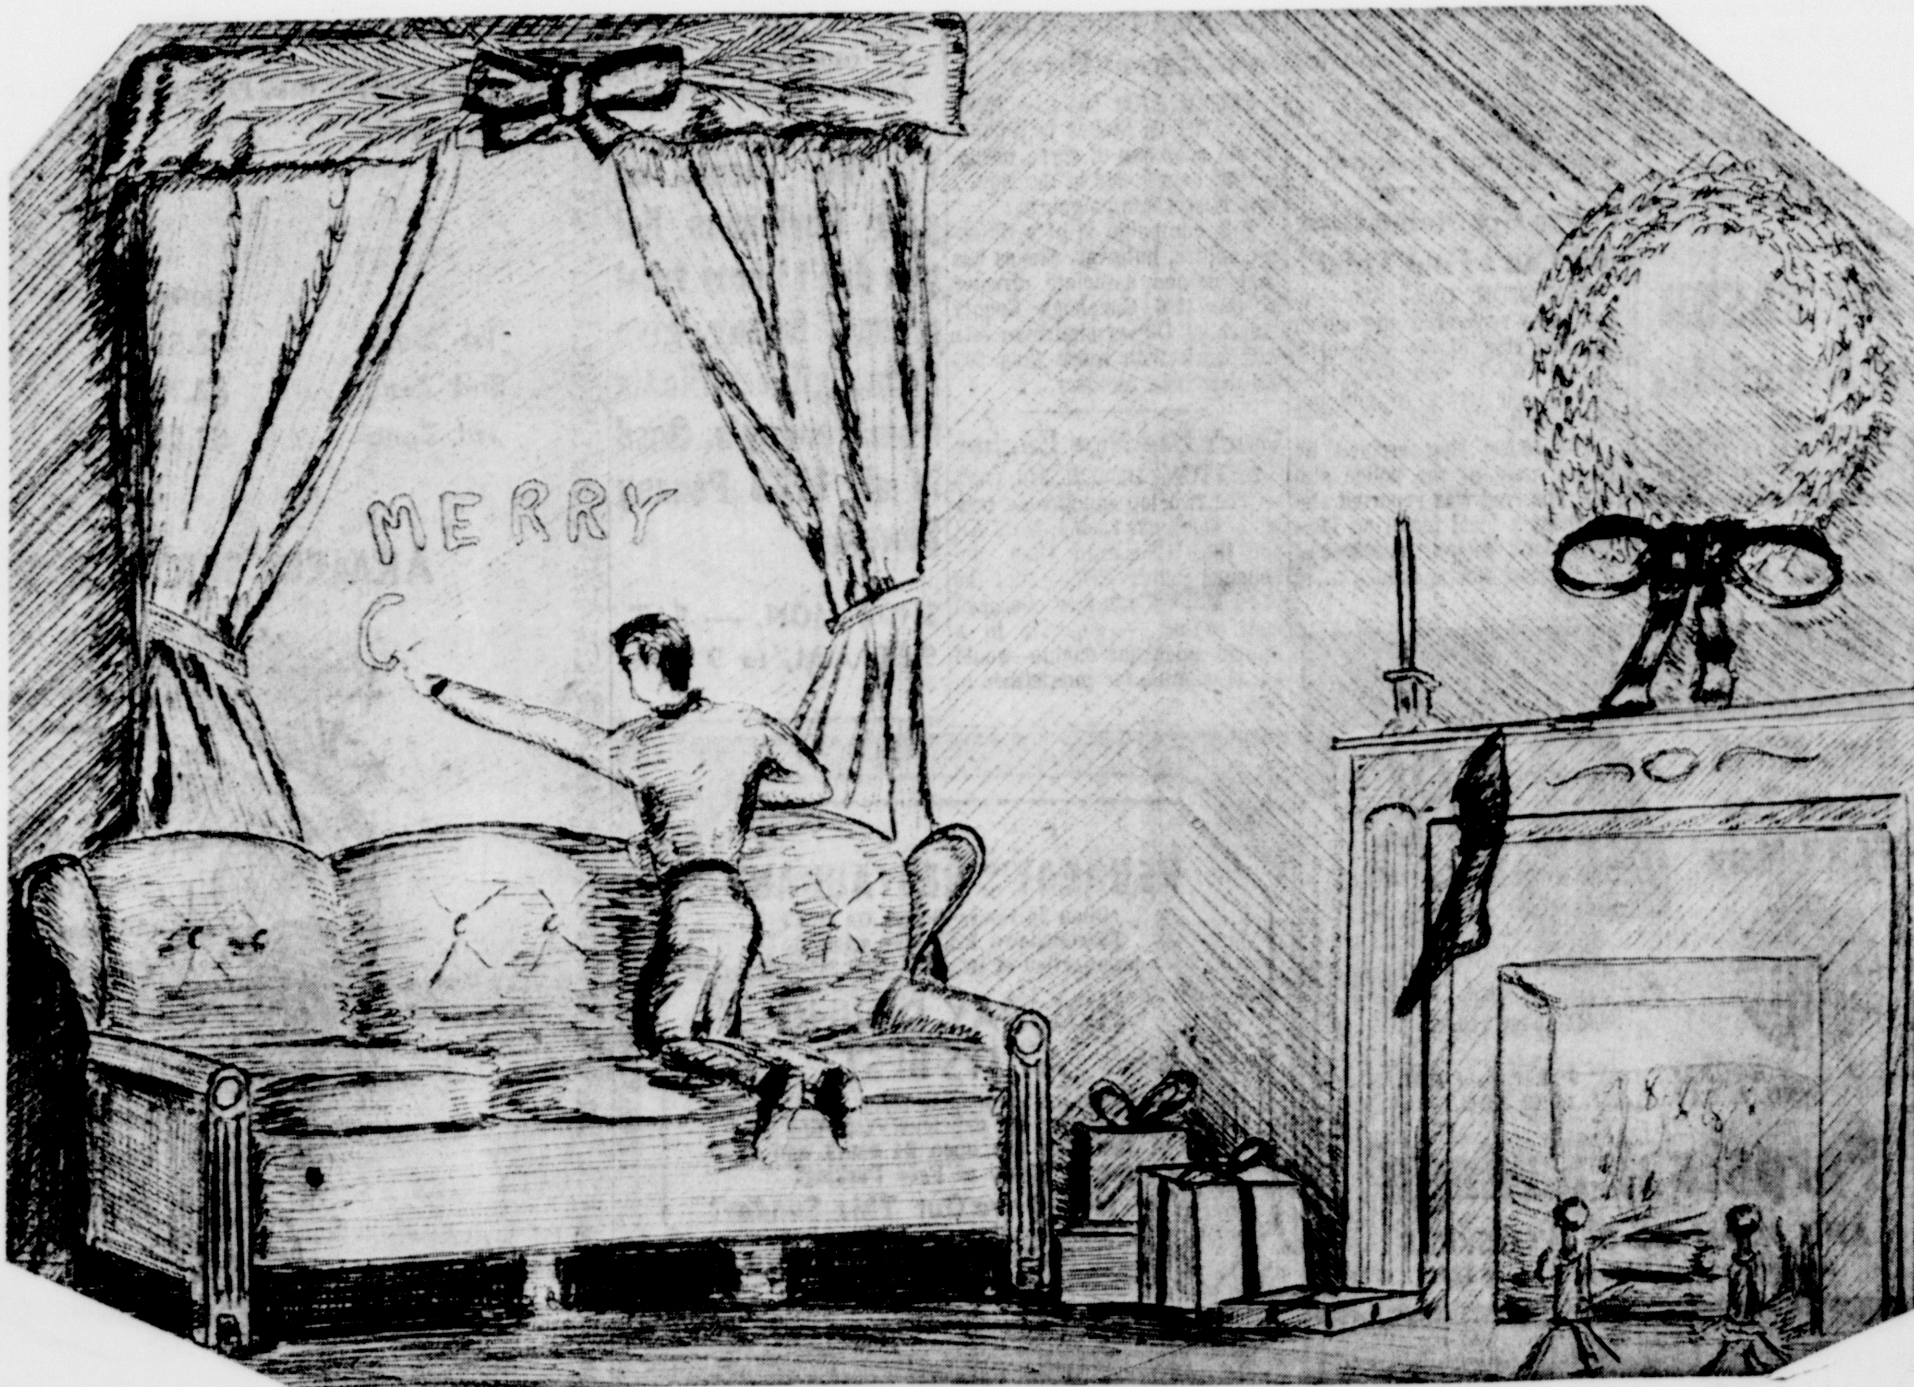

THEN HE SAW a rusted, tin can lying near the man's chest. Picking it up, he pried at the corroded cover. The dust came off on his hands and he could read the label "Arbuckle's Coffee."

Suddenly the lid sprung free and a noisy cascade clattered across the bare floor. Turning his flashlight beam, the patrolman saw dozens of marbles—reds and greens and golds glimmering in the light.

He placed the can carefully on the floor and switched his light toward the fireplace again.

Outlined on the tile earth, in spidery letters that could have been written by someone very young or very old, he saw the words: "Merry Christmass."

And he looked again at the man stretched in front of the fireplace. For the first time, he saw that the man's face was covered with a radiant, contented smile—the smile of a man who came home for Christmas.

Another Child Struck By Car

A city motorist was cited by police after a 7-year-old East End girl was struck by his auto while returning home from school Friday afternoon.

Leeanna Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Adams, 2201 St. Clair Ave., was the third city youngster to be injured by autos in less than 24 hours.

Taken to City Hospital, she was examined and then referred to the family physician. The hospital said the child suffered abrasions of the face, right hand and left foot and knee.

Patrolman S. E. Hayes cited Jack Lee Coleman, 30, of 934 Lincoln Ave., on a charge of failing to stop within the assured clear distance.

The investigating officer said the girl was en route home from Klondyke School and was crossing Harvey Ave. at Bushwick St. when struck by Coleman's westbound auto.

Skidmarks at the accident scene measured approximately 100 feet, Hayes said.

A minor crash at 3:45 p.m. at Market and 3rd Sts. involved cars operated by Nelson L. Boley, 20, of New Cumberland, R. D. 2 and Alice Gay Kent, 24, of Hoppels Corners driving an auto owned by Everett Frazier of Smiths Ferry R.D., police said.

Boley told police he backed up to let another car out of a city parking lot and hit the front end of the auto driven by the woman.

Paul A. Crist of Salineville R. D. 1 reported to police at 4:15 p.m. yesterday that the trunk lid of his auto had been dented by a hit-skip motorist while parked on W. 5th St. near Market St. between 1:30 and 4:15.

All Of Elected 2 Of 3 Young Jail Escapees Are Captured

All officials scheduled to take office Jan. 1 filed sworn expense statements prior to the deadline at 4 p. m. Friday, the County Election Board said today.

A Leetonia official was the last elected official to qualify with his statement received at the board's office at 1:24 p. m., about 2½ hours prior to the deadline.

The board today was checking to determine whether any non-winners had failed to comply with the law. Those who fail to file the reports, required of all candidates and committees that supported or opposed any candidate or issue, are barred from seeking public office again for five years.

Two East Liverpool men who made unsuccessful bids at the Nov. 2 election also filed yesterday, the last of the city candidates to submit the statements.

Scranton Calls On Workers To Bring Gifts For Viet GIs

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Scranton has called on some 15,000 state employees to bring to work with them Monday Christmas gifts for American servicemen in Viet Nam.

"I ask that you wrap it in gay Christmas colors so that it may carry a touch of home to the rice paddies and marshes of Viet Nam," the governor said in his annual Christmas message to state workers. "If you wish, include a cheerful note."

The gifts are to be picked up at the Capitol by National Guardsmen and taken to Olmsted Air Force Base in nearby Middletown. There they will be loaded aboard an Air National Guard plane which will fly them overseas.

Arrangements were made with the American National Red Cross to have the gifts distributed to combat troops in Viet Nam with first distribution to wounded servicemen.

"Your gift need not be expensive. Make it a practical gift," Scranton said.

He suggested stationary, ballpoint pens, plastic picture frames, nuts in cans, paperback books (preferably mysteries), small calendars, small diaries, puzzles, small scissors and sewing kits.

Earlier, the governor and Mrs. Scranton joined members of the cabinet and several hundred state employees in a colorful tree lighting ceremony in the capitol rotunda.

Mrs. Scranton, wearing a light green suit, simultaneously lighted a 30-foot Norway spruce beneath the capitol dome and a 60-foot eastern hemlock on the front steps.

High school choirs, wearing robes of red, white and blue, sang Christmas carols.

Following the ceremony, Mrs. Scranton was hostess to 250 children at a Christmas party. The youngsters were participants in "head start," the federal anti-poverty program for pre-school children.

Action Slated On Pay Hike

Legislation providing salary increases for the safety - service director and Municipal Council clerk will be presented to Council Monday night at its last regular meeting of 1965.

Council also is scheduled to consider an ordinance granting longevity pay to members of the fire and police departments.

The legislation provides the director's salary will be boosted by $1,200, from the present $6,600 to $7,800.

Mayor George E. Willshaw requested the boost in a letter to Council at its session Dec. 6, but without saying if he expects to retain Robert E. Vodrey in the office when the mayor begins a full term in his own right on Jan. 1.

Vodrey is a holdover from the administration of Mayor Merrill D. Hall, "inherited" by Willshaw Sept. 1 when he moved up from the Council presidency after Hall resigned.

Some members of Council commented at the Dec. 6 meeting that they would like to be advised who will hold the director's office for the next two years before acting on the pay request. However, Willshaw still has made no public announcement of his intentions.

The director's raise is timed to begin Jan. 10, first day of the new term. Unlike all other City Hall offices, the director's term begins on the second Monday of January.

A separate ordinance provides a $1,000 boost for Court Clerk Wilbur J. Harmon — from the present $4,500 to $5,500. It would take effect Jan. 1.

Harmon has been clerk since Judge Samuel M. Chertoff took office six years ago and will continue in the job when the judge begins another term on the first day of the new year.

The longevity pay was requested on behalf of the fire and police departments by Fraternal Order of Police Lodge 29 and Local 24, International Association of Fire-Fighters.

The ordinance provides these monthly pay increases, based on years of service: Three years but less than five, $5; five years but less than 10, $10; 10 years, but less than 15, $15; 15 years, but less than 20, $20 and 20 years or more, $25.

The increases would go into effect Jan. 1.

Council also is scheduled to consider ear-marking $3,200 to pay the city's share of the second phase of a city "master plan," now being drafted by the consulting engineering firm of Carroll V. Hill & Associates. The need for the appropriation was explained to Council at the Dec. 6 meeting by Don Eckert, chairman of the City Planning Commission.

Three more pieces of legislation may be presented, although they had not been drafted by Friday afternoon. They are: An appropriation measure allocating money to various departments, a resolution for payment of several claims and an ordinance to vacate a short stretch of Farmers Alley south of E. 3rd St.

Some councilmen indicated they may not be able to muster sufficient votes Monday night for immediate passage of the legislation on a single reading. If that situation develops because some members are unable to attend, Council is expected to schedule a special session before the end of the year.

When legislation contains an emergency clause, as is the case with most of the bills to be presented Monday night, six affirmative votes are required to pass it at one meeting.

Repairs Stopped Pending Action By Legislature

CHARLESTON (AP) — Faced with another $200,000 in repairs to the governor's termite-eaten mansion here, the state Friday canceled all pending repair contracts to let the legislature decide the next step.

Truman Gore, commissioner of Finance and Administration, said the move was necessary because all funds earmarked for the extensive reconstruction work have been exhausted.

Work on the Georgian mansion was stopped several months ago after more than $140,000 had been spent in repairs from funds allocated by the last legislature and from Gov. Hulett Smith's contingency accounts.

Contracts were canceled with the Kuhn Construction Co., which already was paid $129,349, and with Martens Associated Architects and Engineers, already paid $10,732.

Smith and his family moved out of the mansion last summer when extensive repair work uncovered termites and dry rot.

Christmas Party Set At Glenmoor

Plans for a children's Christmas party were completed when the Glenmoor volunteer firemen's association met Thursday night.

It will be held Wednesday night at 7:30 at the station. It was announced that parents may arrange for a visit from Santa Claus for any child who cannot attend because of illness by contacting the station.

Gene Jackson of Glenmoor was accepted as a new member of the department. Ron Wahey was appointed an association trustee.

Twenty-five attended the meeting. George Hamilton presided.

Potters Throw Scare At Midland Before Bowling, 56-53

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

The East Liverpool Potters, edging closer and closer to the victory column, gave Midland a run for its money Friday night before bowling, 56-53.

Coach Frank Chan's team, playing inspired basketball against the defending Pennsylvania state champs, thrilled the top crowd of the season at Memorial Auditorium, with some 1,500 fans literally on the edge of their seats as the contest ended.

THE POTTERS, in striving for their first win of the campaign after four straight setbacks, put together their best four quarters of basketball thus far this season.

East Liverpool will attempt to break into the victory column tonight against Wellsville at the Beacom Memorial gym. The Tigers put a 2-2 record against the Blue and White after winning, 61-60, last night at Steubenville Central. Tonight's varsity game will start about 8:15.

CHAN, in almost tasting his first victory, was quite pleased with the performance of his team. "If we keep playing like we did tonight, we won't lose too many more," he said.

He praised the outstanding work of Chuck Winters, a 6-footer who turned in the finest performance of his varsity career against the Leopards.

Several new faces also reflected bright spots for the future. Bill Carter, 6-3 junior, contributed some timely rebounding and defensive work and junior guard Denny Smith did an adequate job in moving the ball for the Potters in his first starting post.

Chan also could be pleased with the fact that East Liverpool cut down on the number of turnovers, compared with

Winters Pours In 25; Chan's Five Will Face Wellsville Tonight

MIDLAND'S big edge came in shooting. Attempting only 51 shots, the Leopards made 23, for 45 per cent, while East Liverpool was a good bit below this mark with 20 of 64, for 30 per cent.

Winters, who has carried the burden of the Potter scoring in the last three games, hit his season high with 25 points.

Held to three fouls in the first period, he scored 22 in the last three quarters.

He made nine of 20 shots, hitting out of the pivot, driving or occasionally from the corner.

TURNING in a complete game, Winters also led the Potters in the rebounding department with nine, while hustling Darryl Herring, who stands only 5-8, grabbed eight rebounds and had his best night so far in the scoring column with 10.

East Liverpool outrebounded Midland 39-30.

Vern Smith added nine points before fouling out with 5:23 left in the game. Chan had benched Smith during most of the second quarter for what the Potter coach termed "not hustling."

Brent Lake, one of the top scorers from last year, who was being counted upon to carry the brunt of the Leopard attack this season, was boxed out pretty much by the Potters and held to seven points.

RICH MAHURT, Midland's chief rebounder and scorer of late, paced the attack with 15 points. Glen Humbert, who did not start, came on to score 10 points.

The Potters led twice in the game, 4-3 and 8-7, but the contest remained close most of the way.

Midland battled to a 17-14 first-period lead and was on top 32-29 at halftime.

THE LEOPARDS went on to outscore East Liverpool 17-11 in the third period and it appeared the lead was safe until the Potters stormed back to give them a scare.

Trailing 49-40 entering the third period, the Potters came back strong with a three-point play by Winters with 5:54 to go bringing the count to 52-47.

With 2:48 remaining, Winters drove for two, then hit again out of the pivot, bringing the Potters within three, 55-52, with 1:38 showing.

MIDLAND missed a foul try with 24 seconds remaining when Herring was called for a technical foul after throwing the ball when he was called for traveling.

On the same play, Lake fouled Jim Jones, who made the charity toss, making the score 55-53.

With 20 seconds to go and the Potters out of timeouts, Midland was called for traveling and East Liverpool received its last chance to tie the game.

Winters shot with 12 seconds left, but the ball hit the front of the rim and bounced off.

Martins ended the game by converting a foul with three seconds to go.

Kuzma, the excitable Midland coach, was tagged with two technicals by official Sam DiBlasi after questioning several calls. DiBlasi called technicals on three occasions, twice on Kuzma and once on Herring.

Leetonia Pulls Rare Upset Over Columbiana By 45-40

LEETONIA — Leetonia has never had much success on the basketball court with Columbiana. In fact, the Bears only had defeated the Clippers three times in basketball in the school's history.

Friday night, Leetonia made it four victories by upsetting the visiting Clippers, 45-40, in its Tri-County opener.

Leetonia led 15-9 at the end of the first quarter and 25-16 at halftime. Columbiana bounced back to tie the count at 35-35 at the end of the third period but could not pass the Bears in the stretch.

Dave Conrad spearheaded Leetonia's first half attack scoring all 13 of his points in the first two periods. In addition to his scoring Conrad held Columbiana's Jim Murphy to 14 points. He had been averaging 27 points a game until last night.

Murphy finally got going in the second half and sparked the Clippers third period rally with six points.

Columbiana had a 17-11 edge in field goals but Leetonia made

HANOVERTON — A brother combination of Dick and Dale Farmer accounted for 50 points in leading United to an 82-64 victory over Southern Local here Friday night.

The loss was Southern's third in five contests.

Dick Farmer riddled the hoops for 28 points and made 16 of 18 charity tosses. At one stretch, Farmer made 14 straight. Dale scored 22 points for the Eagles.

Wellsville's Gamble Nips Central Five, 61-60

Bob Morehead's jump shot from the key with three seconds remaining provided the Wellsville Tigers with a 61-60, upset of Steubenville Central Friday at the community arena.

In the nip-and-tuck affair that went down to the final whistle, the Tigers of Jack McDevitt had many heroes in their second straight victory.

Nick Comporetta started things rolling in the right direction for Wellsville by scoring nine points in the first period as he led the visitors to a 20-14 advantage.

THE CRUSADERS bounced back in the second stanza with a balanced attack as they outscored the Tigers, 21-13, to take a 35-33 lead at the intermission.

Morehead kept the Tigers within range as he hit for nine markers.

Gary Magary scored six and Jerry Madden and Gene Babicz tallied five each to pace the surging host.

Dick Murray ignited the winners in the third period with four straight goals as the Tigers took an early lead which they held until the 1:28 mark when Babicz knotted the contest at 45-45.

The Crusaders finished the period on top of 48-47 count.

BOTH TEAMS had difficulty finding the range in the final stanza until Morehead goaled to give Wellsville a 49-48 lead with 5:50 left.

After Morehead's tally, the lead switched hands with each score until Babicz deadlocked the contest again, 58-58.

Shortly after Babicz tied the score, Harry Thornton stepped to the charity stripe and hit on the first of a two-shot foul to provide the Tigers with a 59-58 edge.

The lead was short-lived, however, as Magary found the range for Central with 25 seconds left to give the Crusaders their final advantage.

WELLSVILLE coach McDevitt ordered his team to gamble for the last shot with time running out and Morehead provided the clincher with his clutch jump shot to pull the game out of the fire.

In evening its season record at 2-2, Wellsville hit on 42 per cent of its shots and sported four starters in double figures.

Murray paced the win with 18 points with Morehead following with 16, Comporetta 11 and Harry Thornton with 10.

CENTRAL hit on 32 per cent of its shots from the court and also showed four cagers in double figures with Babicz topping the team with 15 markers.

Magary and Jerry Shannon followed with 13 each and Madden tallied 10.

The Tigers won the thriller from the field by hitting for 27 goals. Central scored on 23 shots and nearly pulled off its third straight win by outscoring the visitors, 14-7, at the free throw line.

Central fell to a 2-1 mark.

In the reserve contest, the Tiger subs made it a perfect night by drubbing the Crusaders, 53-38. John McClean tallied 14 and Paul Hood 12 points to lead the way.

Tomsky and Orelli led the losers with 11 markers each.

Wellsville returns home tonight in an attempt to rise above the 500 mark for the first time in gunning for its third win in a row against the winless East Liverpool Potters.

The Potters dropped their fourth straight to the Midland Leopards.

UCLA Whips Kansas Team

By The Associated Press
Routed by the Duke Blue Devils on successive nights last week the UCLA Bruins demonstrated Friday night they aren't ready yet to yield their title as national champions in college basketball.

Dropped from No. 1 to No. 8 in The Associated Press weekly poll after their two disastrous road defeats by Duke, the Bruins bounced back at home to topple the fourth-ranked Kansas Jayhawkers 78-71. The defeat was the first for Kansas in six starts and kept intact UCLA's record of not losing at the Los Angeles Sports Arena in two seasons.

Coach Johnny Wooden switched tactics with his Bruins. After they had built up a 67-58 lead with nine minutes to play, the Bruins abandoned their usual fast break and full court press. They went into a stall and passed up many chances to shoot to keep the ball.

Tulsa's Passer Expected To Sign Pact With Rams

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Tulsa's record-breaking passer Billy Anderson reportedly was scheduled to sign with the Los Angeles Rams for a $300,000 bonus from the National Football League team after the Bluebonnet Bowl game today.

The Houston Post said "a source close to the Tulsa team" reported the deal Friday night. Anderson, who broke nine National Collegiate Athletic Association records this year, was drafted by the Rams and the American Football League Houston Oilers.

2 Bowl Contests Are Slated Today

By The Associated Press
The Tulsa-Tennessee and Mississippi-Auburn bowl battles today whetted football appetites for the big post-season picnic to come in the next two weeks.

The year's first major bowl attractions pitted Tulsa's record-breaking aerial machine against suddenly-potent Tennessee in the Bluebonnet at Houston and Mississippi's resurgent attack against Auburn's grudging defense in the Liberty at Memphis.

Next Saturday it'll be a pair of Christmas treats for armchair quarterbacks—the North-South Shrine classic at Miami and the Blue-Gray clash at Montgomery, Ala.—with each game showcasing some of the nation's outstanding senior talent.

After that there are the Big Four—Rose, Cotton, Sugar and Orange—as well as the Gator, Sun, East-West Shrine, Hula and Senior bowls before the goal posts come down for good.

Tulsa's pass-catch combination of Bill Anderson and Howard Twilley, who rewrote the NCAA record books for the Hurricanes last season, were bound for Miami after their Bluebonnet date with the Vols today.

They're part of the star-studded South squad Tulsa Coach Glenn Dobbs has assembled for the Christmas Day meeting with Notre Dame pilot Ara Parseghian's North standouts in the Miami Shrine game.

The annual Blue-Gray grid war, pairing other college seniors in their first play-for-pay outing, will have national television exposure (CBS) Christmas Day.

On New Year's Eve, still another all-star tussle, the big East-West Shrine game at San Francisco, shares the bill with Mississippi, which finished with five straight SEC victories to nail its ninth consecutive bowl invitation, ruled a narrow choice over the Tigers.

Will NFL's Western Race Be Settled In 24 Hours?

By The Associated Press
Will the National Football League's Western Conference race be settled in 24 hours—or 192?

That's the intriguing situation that exists as the NFL begins its final weekend of regular season action today with Green Bay, Baltimore and Chicago separated by only one game in the battle for a Jan. 2 championship berth against Cleveland.

By nightfall Sunday one of the three will be crowned the Western kings, or they will have to decide the issue in a playoff the following Sunday.

The showdown struggle begins at 4 p.m., EST, today, when the defending champion Colts meet the resurgent Rams at Los Angeles in a game that will be nationally televised by CBS. Green Bay is at San Francisco Sunday while the Bears are at home to Minnesota.

Jets Sign Up Linebacker For $300,000

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Jets, who've received a fair return so far on their $400,000 investment in quarterback Joe Namath, shelled out an estimated $300,000 for All-America linebacker Carl McAdams of Oklahoma.

McAdams, 6-foot-3, 217 pounder from White Deer, Tex., was introduced Friday at a news conference during which Sonny Werblin, the Jets' owner, said, "As far as I know Carl's contract is the biggest one that's ever been offered to a lineman. I understand that Dick Butkus got a little less than $300,000 to sign with the Chicago Bears."

Butkus was an All-America linebacker for Illinois in 1964. McAdams, 21, was the American Football League team's third round draft choice and the first round pick of the St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League. "The contracts offered were about the same by both clubs," McAdams disclosed. "I thought I would have more of an opportunity in New York than in St. Louis."

Junior Editors Quiz on PLASTICS

QUESTION: How are plastics made?

ANSWER: Plastic means able to be moulded. Since the first plastics were shaped by pressure, this name was adopted by the inventors. Articles made from plastic are different from other man-made objects. Take a wooden log and you can make paper from it. But the paper is still wood pulp—wood in another form. But in making plastics, the basic raw materials are changed into something new and different.

Many plastics start with simple raw materials such as water, air, coal, limestone and salt. These are treated in different ways—by squeezing, heating, distilling and so on (suggested in pictures to right) producing other materials such as ethylene, ammonia, formaldehyde, etc. In the process, the tiny invisible building blocks of matter, the molecules, are rearranged in new ways. This process, called polymerization, produces new products, the synthetic resins, such as those of the important urea, vinyl, phenolic and polystyrene groups. Taking these, the plastics manufacturer, by various processes of heating, casting, squeezing and so on, makes the amazing variety of light, waterproof, tough objects we use in our everyday lives.

FOR YOU TO DO: Write down a list of the qualities you think plastics have. You will write "hard" and "tough"; but then think of the plastic cheeks of Liza's doll which she is pinching to make the doll purse her lips, and you will also have to write "flexible."

Joseph Armand of Chicago, Ill., wins today's combined prize of Compton's Illustrated Science Dictionary plus $10 cash for this question. Mail yours on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of The Review.

ASC Banquet Attracts 100

LISBON — More than 100 attended the banquet of the Columbiana County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee Wednesday night at the First Christian Church.

The program theme was "Thirty Years of Service to Agriculture."

Special recognition was given retired committee members who were present: Lodge Thorne, who served on the first committee in 1936, Wesley Stoffer, George Pollock, Galen Bowman and J. Floyd Stamp.

Dwight Wise, chairman of the ASC state committee, was guest speaker.

He and his two sons operate a 350-acre beef, dairy and grain farm at Fremont and he has been associated with various farm programs since the early 1930's.

Wise reviewed accomplishments of past programs, discussed the new omnibus farm bill and predicted changes in future programs as the population increase continues.

John B. Gaynor, ASC member from Ashtabula County, spoke briefly on committee responsibility and emphasized the importance of conservation activities.

The program included: Welcome and introduction of guests, J. Glenn Bates, chairman of the county committee; review of previous programs, Clifford Shaw; vocal selections, Mrs. Winston Lora, accompanied by Mrs. Richard Tullis.

Women of the church served the dinner.

OSU President Asks Reversal Of Home's Approval

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — President Novice G. Fawcett of Ohio State University said today he had asked OSU's board of trustees to reverse its controversial approval of a $300,000 home for the university president.

He said he had asked the board to drop the proposal and gave a number of reasons for his request.

The action of the board in approving the construction from cash gifts and donations given for the specific purpose was taken Dec. 9.

Before the action and afterward there had been criticism from a number of quarters, including letters and telegrams to Gov. James A. Rhodes, protesting the building because of its high cost.

Man, 64, Drowns As Car Lands In Creek

GROVE CITY, Pa. (AP) — A car hit a bridge and landed in a creek Friday near this Mercer County town, drowning the operator.

Nathaniel I. Lucy, 64, of Harrisville R.D. 1, Butler County, was dead on arrival at Elashline Hospital in Grove City.

Santa and the Zabbazara Bus

BY LUCRECE BEALE

Synopsis: The travelers get to Zabbazara. The Princess tells them she cannot help them because the Voodoo man has a magic greater than her own.

CHAPTER 12

The beautiful Princess of Zabbazara had tears in her eyes as she expalined to Santa Claus that she did not have the power to break the spell the Voodoo man had cast over Santa Land.

"Oh, my," moaned Mr. D. "To think there'll never be Christmas again! How can he do such a thing?"

"He has a secret power," said the Princess. "He is using it to get rid of all happy spirits and all good fairies. He wants to be king of all Fairyland, and not even Zabbazara will escape."

THE LITTLE lost boy couldn't stand to see the Princess cry. "Don't worry!" he blurted out. "We will protect you. Won't we, Santa? Won't we, Mr. D?"

Santa shook his head helplessly, but Mr. D said, "Of course!" He flapped his ears with excitement. "I'm not afraid of that old Voodoo man!"

"You are right not to be afraid of him," said the Princess. "He has no power over real life people. But you can't stop him from casting his spells over fairyland creatures."

"We could find out his secret!" exclaimed the boy.

"Sure," said Mr. D. "I've heard a lot of secrets in my time. Folks like to tell bus drivers their secrets."

All this time Santa had been standing there not saying anything but just thinking and worrying about the awful power of the Voodoo man. Now he said, "We've got to find out what his secret is. Maybe they can do it."

THE PRINCESS took the little boy's hands in hers. "Oh, could you?" she cried.

The little boy felt 10 feet tall. "We've got to do it!" he said.

And Mr. D said, "Come on, boy, let's get back to the bus and find the Voodoo man!"

But, alas! the Voodoo man had already found them!

A crowd of children burst into the palace crying, "Someone's coming! A black-cloaked creature is on his way!"

They rushed out of the palace and down to the edge of the sea. Far away they saw the Voodoo man holding a black balloon. He was just taking off from the distant shore.

"Get back!" cried the Princess to the waiting children. "Go quickly and hide!"

The children looked at her in

"He has a secret power!" said the beautiful Princess.

astonishment. They could not understand why she was so afraid. Nevertheless, they did as they were told.

Then Santa said, "We must hide, too."

BUT THE Princess said, "It's no use. He will find us wherever we are. Oh, the poor children! Whatever will become of them?"

Suddenly Mr. D's ears began to wiggle. Whenever he had an idea his ears flapped wildly. He put both hands over his ears to still them and then he burst out: "Change clothes!"

"What?"

"Change clothes. I'll be Santa Claus and the boy will be the Princess. The Voodoo man's power won't work on us, and you two will be safe!"

"But you don't have whiskers!" protested Santa. "And you're thin. I'm fat!"

"And how can I be a girl?" scoffed the boy. "I don't look anything like a girl!"

But the Princess said, "I still have some power. I can provide wigs and whiskers and such. We must try it. It's our only chance!"

Turnpike Return Shows Increase In West Virginia

CHARLESTON (AP) — West Virginia Turnpike commissioners learned Friday that increased revenues from higher tolls and a $50,000 drop in budgeted expenses will permit accelerated resurfacing work next year.

Manager W. E. Stahl said revenues were up by $75,000, largely due to the recent increase in tolls for the 88-mile turnpike.

Stahl said this will allow about $550,000 to be spent on resurfacing. A decision on where the work will be centered is expected next March.

Stahl reported that the total 1965 revenue will equal about 72 per cent of the required interest payment on the $133 million bond issue that paid for the road, the highest interest payment raised from tolls in the road's 11-year history.

Two More Measures Signed By Scranton

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Scranton Friday signed into law legislation providing for the gradual sharing between state and local government in the cost of administering the federal Food Stamp Program.

The bill establishes a 70-30 state-local share respectively for the 1965-66 fiscal year, a 60-40 share in the 1966-67 fiscal year and a 50-50 share the following year.

Scranton also signed into law a bill prohibiting townships, municipalities, counties and other duly constituted authorities that operate railroad passenger stations from compelling common carriers to operate to and from the stations.
